However, CS provides no guarantee with regard to its content and completeness and does not accept any liability for losses which might arise from making use of this information. The opinions expressed in this document are those of CS at the time of writing and are subject to change at any time without notice. If nothing is indicated to the contrary, all figures are unaudited. This document is provided for information purposes only and is for the exclusive use of the recipient. It does not constitute an offer or a recommendation to buy or sell financial instruments or banking services and does not release the recipient from exercising his/her own judgment. The recipient is in particular recommended to check that the information provided is in line with his/her own circumstances with regard to any legal, regulatory, tax, or other consequences, if necessary with the help of a professional advisor. Every investment involves risk, especially with regard to fluctuations in value and return. Investments in foreign currencies involve the additional risk that the foreign currency might lose value against the investor's reference currency. It should be noted that historical returns and financial market scenarios are no guarantee of future performance. Derivative Products (e.g. options, FINER, structured products) may be complex and may involve a high degree of risk. They are intended only for investors who understand and are capable of assuming the risks involved. Before entering into any transaction, an investor should determine if a transaction suits his/her particular circumstances and should independently assess (with professional advisors) the specific risks (maximum loss, currency risks, extraordinary market situations, etc.) and the legal, regulatory, credit, tax, and accounting consequences.

With the exception of structured products, the only binding terms of these transactions are set forth in the transaction-specific contracts and confirmations prepared by Credit Suisse AG. Structured products do not constitute participation in a collective investment scheme. Therefore, they are not supervised by the Swiss Financial Market Supervisory Authority FINMA and the investor does not benefit from the specific investor protection provided under the Federal Act on Collective Investment Schemes. The value retention of a structured product is dependent not only on the development of the value of the underlying asset, but also on the creditworthiness of the issuer (credit risk), which may change over the term of the structured product. Where not explicitly otherwise stated, the issuer has no duty to invest in the underlying assets and investors have no recourse to the underlying assets or to any payouts on the underlying assets. The price of a structured product will reflect the customary fees and costs charged on the level of the underlying assets (e.g. index calculation fees, management fees, administration fees). Certain built-in costs are likely to adversely affect the value of the structured product prior to maturity. This document may not be reproduced either in part or in full without the written permission of CS.
