SUMMARY

At the University of Minnesota, I have established and led a research laboratory, which conducts research in the information and knowledge aspects of computing. During this course I have supervised 46 Ph.D. dissertations, 70 M.S. theses, and a number of post-doctoral researchers. In the process, I have authored or co-authored over 470 creative works as papers in refereed journals, conferences, and invited book chapters. I have been a co-inventor on 6 assigned patents, and a number of them under review. A series of prototype software systems have built in my laboratory to evaluate and validate our research results; and have acted as vehicles of technology transfer. My Google Scholar citation count is 31,853, with an h-index of 65 and i-10 index of 283. My research has won 7 best paper awards.

In support of my research activity, I have been the PI or co-PI on 68 research grants, from federal agencies, including NSF, DARPA, ARL, ARI, NIH, CDC, AFRL, IARPA, ARDA, as well as state agencies such as MNDoT, and the industry, including IBM, Honeywell, and United Technologies. In addition, I have participated in a number of successful collaborative research/infrastructure grant efforts.

I have served on the editorial boards of IEEE Transactions on Parallel and Distributed Systems (TPDS), the VLDB Journal, the Knowledge and Information Systems Journal (KAIS), and the World-Wide Web Journal, and the IEEE Transactions of Knowledge and Data Engineering (TKDE), and as a guest editor for the Data Mining & Knowledge Discovery Journal and IEEE TKDE. I have served as Program and Conference Chair for a number of prominent conferences, especially in the area of data mining. I have delivered a number of keynote addresses, plenary talks, and invited tutorials at major conferences.

Most recently I spent three years at Qatar Computing Research Institute (QCRI), a flagship institute of Qatar Foundation (https://www.qf.org.qa/), as Research Director and Chief Scientist. This is an institute with around 140 people from over 30 countries worldwide, providing a highly multicultural and multi-ethnic environment. My roles involved guiding the scientific process, instituting formal review processes for personnel evaluation/promotion/hiring as well as project evaluation, and representing the institute from a scientific perspective; in addition to conducting my own research. In addition, I was the strategic interface with the people involved in technology commercialization.

I have spent significant time in the industry, transferring some of my research into practice. Specifically, in a 2-year sabbatical during 1999-2001, I was the Data Mining Architect for Amazon.com (www.amazon.com) and built a data analytics department at Yodlee (www.yodlee.com) from the ground up. During 2004-2006. I was the Chief Technology Officer for Persistent Systems (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Persistent_Systems), where I led the creation of an R&D division with centers of excellence from the ground up. In addition, I oversaw the redesign of the training and technical vitalization program for the engineering staff. In 2010 I Co-Founded Ninja Metrics

(www.ninjametrics.com), a startup company to commercialize my research in game analytics, and served as its Chief Technology Officer.

I have served as the US federal government's expert witness in a nationally significant case, which involved expressing my opinion on what constitutes computer science research and development. I have been a technology advisor to the Government of Maharashtra, and have consulted with a number of private corporations and government organizations, including CDAC, Tata Infotech and Persistent Systems. I've served as Senior Technology Advisor to the State of Minnesota, providing input into technology policy, and helping a major transformation of the government's operations through better use of information technology. As a member of its Technology Advisory and Review Board (TARB), I have provided technology advice to the Government of India for the Unique ID project (http://online.wsj.com/article/SB10001424052748704652104575493490951809322.html), the world's largest project to issue biometric-baseds ID's to over 1.4 billion citizens of India.

I have been elected as a Fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE), the world's premier professional society in the field. I'm serving as a Distinguished Visiting Professor at the Gangawal School of Medical Sciences and Technology at IIT Kanpur. I've been a Distinguished Fellow of Allina's Center for Healthcare Innovation. I have been appointed as IEEE's Distinguished Visitor, and have given over 100 invited talks in over 30 countries, including over 60 Keynotes/Tutorials/Plenary addresses. I have been awarded the Distinguished Contributions Award by the PAKDD Society for my lifetime contributions to the field of data mining.
