INTERDIGITAL RENEWS LICENSE AGREEMENT WITH SONY

Company Release - 2/17/2026

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 17, 2026 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- InterDigital, Inc. (Nasdaq: IDCC), a wireless, video, and AI technology research and development company, today announced that the company has signed a new patent license agreement with Sony.

This agreement covers all of Sony's end user devices under InterDigital's global patent portfolio, including InterDigital's standard essential cellular, WiFi, and video patents.

"Sony is a long-term InterDigital licensee, and we're delighted to have renewed our license with such a world-renowned technology company," commented Julia Mattis, Chief Licensing Officer, InterDigital. "This agreement is further demonstration of how our innovation drives the connected world across a wide range of devices – from the smartphone in your pocket, to the laptop on your desk, and the connected TV and gaming console in your living room."

About InterDigital®

InterDigital is a global research and development company focused primarily on wireless, video, artificial intelligence ("AI"), and related technologies. We design and develop foundational technologies that enable connected, immersive experiences in a broad range of communications and entertainment products and services. We license our innovations worldwide to companies providing such products and services, including makers of wireless communications devices, consumer electronics, IoT devices, cars and other motor vehicles, and providers of cloud-based services such as video streaming. As a leader in wireless technology, our engineers have designed and developed a wide range of innovations that are used in wireless products and networks, from the earliest digital cellular systems to 5G and today's most advanced Wi-Fi technologies. We are also a leader in video processing and video encoding/decoding technology, with a significant AI research effort that intersects with both wireless and video technologies. Founded in 1972, InterDigital is listed on Nasdaq.
