Dec. 12, 2023	74	Joint STATUS REPORT by Samsung Electronics Co., Ltd.. (Stombaugh, Alexis) (Entered: 12/12/2023)
Dec. 13, 2023	75	ORDER re 74 Joint Status Report. The Court understands that TCP has limited access to information linking its products to the LEDs supplied by third-party Seoul Semiconductor to TCPs manufacturer, and believes TCP is attempting to supply that information in good faith. As discussed during the 12/5/2023 status conference, however, given the complexities and extended timeline in pursuing discovery under the Hague Convention, the Court has concerns that the lack of a firm deadline in TCP providing whatever information that is within its custody and control or that can be reasonably discerned by TCP will substantially delay what will likely be a lengthy third-party discovery. Accordingly, the Court orders TCP to provide its supplemental response to Samsungs interrogatory identifying the specific LEDs used in each specific product sold by TCP to the fullest extent possible by 12/29/2023. Motion re First-to-File Rule — Denied

District Court Procedural Issues
└ Stay of Proceedings
Venue
└ First-To-File Rule
└ Suit Against Customer

The court denied one defendant's motion to sever and stay plaintiff's claims against it pending plaintiff's claims against a co-defendant and found that the customer-suit exception did not apply. "The circumstances of this case don't concern dueling lawsuits or forum selection issues, as there are no separate competing lawsuits, and no Defendant has contested venue or jurisdiction or would seek transfer to a different venue. Moreover, [the moving Defendant] and [co-Defendant] are represented by the same counsel, so the inefficiencies created by forcing a 'true defendant' and an unrelated 'peripheral defendant,' such as one among many customers of the 'true defendant,' to litigate together are absent here. In short, [the movant] hasn't proffered a reason for the Court to grant its motion that furthers the spirit of the customer-suit exception."

Motion re First-to-File Rule — Denied

District Court Procedural Issues
└ Severing, Consolidating & Relating
District Court Procedural Issues
└ Stay of Proceedings
Venue
└ Suit Against Customer

The court denied one defendant's motion to sever and stay plaintiff's claims against it under the customer-suit exception and found that severance would impose and undue burden on plaintiff. "Significantly, [Plaintiff] has brought a Section 271(g) direct infringement claim against [the moving Defendant], alleging that [the movant] infringed the '140 patent. . . . By contrast, one of the theories against [a co-Defendant] is indirect infringement under Section 271(b)—i.e., that [co-Defendant] knowingly induced [the movant's] infringement. That means that for [Plaintiff] to prove indirect infringement against [co-Defendant], it must first prove direct infringement against [the movant]. Thus, to sever [the movant] from the case and force [Plaintiff] to litigate its claim for indirect infringement against [co-Defendant] without a direct infringer 'would impose a substantial burden' on [Plaintiff]. The burden is especially great in this situation, where [the movant] is the only alleged direct infringer (other than [co-Defendant])."
