Counsel,

As we have previously notified you, we will soon be filing one or more IPR petitions to invalidate claims in the '633 Patent. Before doing so and to potentially streamline issues in the IPR process, please let us know if Bestway will covenant not to sue all Intex entities, upstream suppliers, etc, and downstream distributors, customers, etc. for the products included in your infringement contentions served in the '633 Patent case, Notices of Intent to File Lawsuit for the '633 Patent, and the products noted in the e-mail below for any claims of the '633 Patent not asserted in your infringement contentions (i.e. all claims other than 1, 2, 16, 19, and 20). Please let us know your response by December 1, 2022.

Please let us know if you have any questions or want to discuss.

Take care,

Trevor

Subject: 633 Case Infringement Contentions

Counsel,

Bestway's preliminary infringement contentions in the '633 case identify a single accused product: 54" x 75" x 24" Full Dura-Beam Deluxe High-Rise Pillow Top Airbed (SKU 64752WD). Bestway accused another product of infringing the '633 Patent in its December 21, 2021 Notice of Intent

Letter. Bestway referred to this other product as the “second generation Dream Lux Pillow-Top Airbed Mattress with Internal Pump” (the “Unaccused Products”). Based on Bestway’s preliminary infringement contentions, we understand that Bestway is not alleging infringement of the Unaccused Products in this matter. These Unaccused Products are currently (or were recently) on the market and Bestway failed to accuse them of infringement in its preliminary infringement contentions:

Because these products have been and are publicly available in the U.S., we understand that Bestway is not accusing them of infringement in the ‘633 case.

Happy Thanksgiving to you and your families.

Take care,

Trevor
