		Motion to Stay Pending Dispositive Motion	Denied
		Stay of Proceedings L Factors Considered L Harm Without Stay	The court denied defendants' motion to stay pending their motions to dismiss, sever, and transfer and determined that the potential prejudice to plaintiff and lack of prejudice to defendants weighed against a stay. "[Plaintiff] disputes the claim that it is no longer a practicing entity. [Plaintiff] also seeks prompt discovery . . . because it believes the discovery may lead to other patent infringement claims against third parties. And . . . these potential infringement claims are subject to the Patent Act's six-year statute of limitations. . . . [A]ll Defendants seek a stay, but only [two] claim improper venue or jurisdiction. Thus, no basis exists for granting a stay as to [the other two]. . . . [W]hile [the first two] may have to briefly litigate in an inconvenient forum, the motions were only recently filed, the period is limited, and no deadlines are currently pending before the Court."

Motion to Strike Non-Pleading Filing		Granted
District Court Procedural Issues ↳ Motion Practice in General ↳ Replies, Sur-Replies & Supplemental Briefs District Court Procedural Issues ↳ Parties ↳ Addition or Substitution of Parties (FRCP 15 & 25)		The court granted defendant's motion to strike plaintiff's surreply to defendant's motion to dismiss because plaintiff improperly sought to substitute parties. "[Plaintiff's] surreply . . . did not 'address the new argument and new matter' within the context of [Defendant's] original motion to dismiss. Rather, [Plaintiff], in effect, moved the court to 'permit [Plaintiff] to substitute [the new party] into this case in the stead of [Defendant].' [Plaintiff] proposed such a solution because 'it appears by all accounts that [the new party] was the entity that should have been identified in the Complaint,' and '[Defendant] appears hostile and unwilling to engage in any meaningful discovery' regarding the proper entity. [Plaintiff] is not permitted to seek this type of relief under the guise of a surreply."

Dec. 19, 2022	103	Memorandum Opinion and Order: Before the Court is Defendant Landsberg Orora's ("Landsberg")'s Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 68). Landsberg moves the Court to dismiss Plaintiff DDC Technology ("DDC")'s Original Complaint (Doc. 1) for lack of personal jurisdiction, improper venue, and failure to state a claim. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b). Because the Court finds that it lacks personal jurisdiction over Landsberg, the Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 68) is GRANTED, and DDC's claims are DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE. (Ordered by Judge Jane J Boyle on 12/19/2022) (ndt) (Entered: 12/19/2022)
		Motion to Dismiss - Lack of Personal Jurisdiction (FRCP 12(b)(2))	Granted
		Personal Jurisdiction L Compliance With Federal Due Process L Minimum Contacts	The court granted one defendant's motion to dismiss plaintiff's patent infringement action for lack of personal jurisdiction and first concluded that the court lacked general jurisdiction. "[Defendant] has successfully challenged [Plaintiff's] grounds for personal jurisdiction with declaration evidence showing [Defendant] is not the corporate entity operating in Texas. [Plaintiff] has not responded with any evidence countering this proposition, let alone 'comparable levels of proof.' As to the website, [Defendant] says it does not own the domain name or [relevant website], but it does not explain which entity is responsible. Regardless, merely maintaining a website that can be accessed in the forum state is nowhere near the type of 'systematic and continuous' contacts necessary for general jurisdiction."
		Motion to Dismiss - Lack of Personal Jurisdiction (FRCP 12(b)(2))	Granted
		Personal Jurisdiction L Compliance With Federal Due Process L Minimum Contacts Jurisdiction L Personal Jurisdiction L Corporate Relations and Jurisdiction/Venue	The court granted one defendant's motion to dismiss plaintiff's patent infringement action for lack of personal jurisdiction and determined that defendant did not purposefully direct its activities toward the forum. "[E]ven assuming [Defendant] was the entity responsible for the website, the website alone is insufficient to establish minimum contacts with Texas. . . . Aside from the website itself, [Plaintiff] has not shown 'something more' [Plaintiff] has provided the Court with no basis to conclude that [Defendant] and [a forum-based sister entity] are functionally a single entity or are so related as to impute one entity's contacts to the other."
		Motion for Expedited Discovery	Denied
		Jurisdiction L Personal Jurisdiction L Jurisdictional Discovery	Following dismissal for lack of jurisdiction, the court denied plaintiff's motion for jurisdictional discovery. "[Plaintiff] does not present factual allegations or make specific requests aimed at determining whether [Defendant] has the requisite contacts with Texas to sustain personal jurisdiction. Rather, [Plaintiff's] request is different in both scope and kind: it seeks to understand who the infringer was within the broader corporate family, not whether [Defendant] has any additional contacts with Texas. The discovery is therefore not aimed to produce facts relevant to personal jurisdiction over [Defendant], and its proposed sweep resembles more of a 'fishing expedition' than a targeted jurisdictional inquiry."

Motion to Transfer Venue for Convenience (28 USC § 1404(a))		Granted
Venue L Transfer Of Venue For Convenience L Private Interest Factors (Venue)		The court granted one defendant's motion to sever and transfer plaintiff's patent infringement claims from the Northern District of Texas to the Northern District of California and found that the relative ease of access to proof, availability of compulsory process, and cost for willing witnesses favored transfer. "[Plaintiff's] claims regarding the presence of evidence and documents are based solely on the LinkedIn profiles of the entities' purported employees. . . . Whereas [Defendant] has identified third-party witnesses and explained their relevant knowledge, [Plaintiff's] witnesses lack any direct connection to the cardboard viewers. . . . [Defendant] has identified several willing witnesses for both itself and [Plaintiff] that are located in California. . . . While the Court acknowledges that [Plaintiff] is located in Austin, Texas, [Plaintiff] itself only acquired the Asserted Patents for purposes of litigation and is unlikely to have many substantive witnesses."
Motion to Sever		Granted
District Court Procedural Issues L Severing, Consolidating & Relating		The court granted one defendant's motion to sever and transfer plaintiff's patent infringement claims and determined that plaintiff's claims against the various defendants were sufficiently distinct. "To be sure, the suit has some overlapping claims and issues between [a co-Defendant] and [the movant]. . . . Zooming out, however, the Court finds that [the movant] is ultimately not 'so involved in the controversy' such that judicial efficiency overcomes the strong interests in transfer. Rather, DDC's claims against [the co-Defendant] are peripheral to the central action against [the movant]. Indeed, DDC claims that [the movant] directly infringed its patents through not only [one accused product], but also the [products] of former defendants and WWGC Program members. . . . In context, therefore, the efficiencies gained from the overlap in claims regarding [the co-Defendant's] manufacturing of [the movant's accused product] are likely overshadowed by the inefficiencies in including [the co-Defendant] as a peripheral defendant in the mass of claims against [the movant] for other cardboard viewers."
