Exhibit #	Reference Name
2017	Declaration of Thomas M. Patton

Petitioner College Products (“CP”) filed a declaratory judgement (“DJ”) action for invalidity on U.S. Patent Nos. 11,274,876 (the “’876 Patent”); 9,791,206 (the “’206 Patent”); 9,657,974 (the “’974 Patent”); and 10,495,374 (the “’374 Patent”) on January 5, 2023 (collectively, the “Patents-at-Issue”). (Ex. 1017). CP filed its petitions for inter partes review for the ’206, ’974, and ’374 Patents six months later, on June 8, 2023. In short, “before the date on which the petition for review [was] filed, the petitioner . . . filed a civil action challenging the validity of a claim of the patent.” See 35 U.S.C. § 315(a)(1). Without legal citation, CP asks the Board to ignore the clear language of § 315(a)(1), ignore the definition of “counterclaim,” and ignore analogous caselaw cited by Patent Owner Intirion to hold that CP’s petitions for inter partes review—filed six months after CP filed its DJ action challenging the validity of the Patents-at-Issue—are somehow not barred. The Board should reject CP’s request. Inter partes review is barred here.

Tellingly, after seeking leave to specifically address the § 315(a)(1) bar issue, CP did not find any legal support for its position that § 315(a)(1) does not bar institution of this Petition. Instead, CP chose to misrepresent the record and the cases Intirion cited in its preliminary response. CP attempts to circumvent Avigilon Corp. v. Canon Inc., Case IPR2018-01626 (P.T.A.B. Mar. 18, 2019), by arguing it is distinguishable as Intirion’s Action (Ex. 2001) was in the wrong venue, so CP’s claims in its DJ Action (Ex. 2006) are actually “counterclaims.”¹ CP “distinguishes” on a legally irrelevant fact. Simply put, CP filed an undisputedly separate DJ lawsuit. E.g., (Ex. 2005 (naming CP as “Plaintiff,” not “counterclaimant”)). Moreover, Avigilon stands for the proposition that filing a DJ action is not “counterclaims” for the purposes of § 315(a)(1) even where the claims could also have been filed as counterclaims in a separately pending action. Avigilon, Paper 11 at 10–11. CP has not (and cannot) distinguish this, nor has CP found caselaw supporting its position.

Similarly, CP’s attempts to distinguish ZTE, Ruiz, and Click-to-Call fall flat. CP ignores the clear purpose of these citations in Intirion’s briefing—to demonstrate the Board has never found that a DJ action initiated before the filing of a petition for inter partes review is a “counterclaim”. ZTE (USA), Inc. v. Agis Software Dev., LLC, Case IPR2019-00487, Paper 9 at 3–5 (P.T.A.B. May 6, 2019) (denying institution where ZTE (USA) had previously filed a DJ action); Ruiz Food Prods., Inc. v. MacroPoint LLC, Case IPR2017-02016 & IPR2017-02018, Paper 25 at 11–13 (P.T.A.B. Feb. 14, 2019) (holding that claims in a DJ action are not considered “counterclaims”).² And Click-to-Call—adopted by Cisco Sys., Inc. v. Chrimar Sys., Inc., Case IPR2018-01511, Paper 11 (PTAB Jan. 31, 2019) (precedential)—requires a plain language application of § 315(a). Click-to-Call Techs., LP v. Ingenio, Inc., 899 F.3d 1321, 1330–31 (Fed. Cir. 2018) (applying the plain and ordinary meaning of “complaint” to § 315); see also Cisco Sys., Paper 11 at 6 (Jan. 31, 2019).

CP also glosses over key undisputed facts that further foreclose CP’s after-

² CP’s selective citation of Ruiz, Paper 25 at 12 (focusing on “against an opposing party”), does not move the needle. Fed. R. Civ. P. 13 notes that counterclaims are against an “opposing party,” i.e., the party already in the suit. Thus, CP’s attempt to distinguish are without merit, as CP “filed its declaratory-judgment complaint “(i) as the plaintiff, (ii) in as [sic] a separate action, (iii) in a different jurisdiction, the Northern District of [Iowa], (iv) naming Patent Owner as defendant.” Ruiz, Paper 25 at 12. In Ruiz, the Board noted such a filing was not consistent with the ordinary meaning of “counterclaim.” Id.

the-fact attempt to recast its DJ Action as “counterclaims.” For example, CP ignores it filed its DJ Action for invalidity of the ’206, ’374, and ’876 Patents six months before CP filed its IPR petitions. (Ex. 2005 at 15–17, 19–21, 22–24 (Count III, titled “Declaratory Judgment of Invalidity of the ’206 Patent”; Count V, titled “Declaratory Judgment of Invalidity of the ’374 Patent”; Count VII, titled “Declaratory Judgment of Invalidity of the ’876 Patent”)). CP listed itself as “Plaintiff” and asserted these invalidity claims in a complaint (as opposed to in an existing civil action as a defendant or counterclaimant). Then—still before filing its IPR petitions, but after Intirion’s Texas case had been transferred to the Northern District of Iowa—CP doubled down and filed an amended complaint in its DJ Action, again challenging the validity of the Patents-at-Issue and including additional claims against Intirion.³ (Ex. 2006). Intirion is aware of no definition of “counterclaim” that would stretch to meet such conduct. Indeed, there is no such definition. CP’s stated belief that Intirion was not “interested . . . in really adjudicating” the infringement case drives the point home—CP believed that it was filing DJ claims of invalidity on patents for which it apparently believed Intirion was not pursuing infringement on. That is not a “counterclaim.” See (Ex. 2009 at 10:21–11:3) (CP’s counsel agreeing the “claims that [CP] filed in the lawsuit [CP] brought” could have been included as counterclaims but were not)).

CP’s petitions for inter partes review should be denied under §315(a)(1). CP filed the DJ Action six months before it filed its petitions for inter partes review. CP does not contest the DJ Action it filed seeks invalidity of a claim of the ’206 Patent. And “in [CP’s] declaratory judgment action, [CP] was the plaintiff while [Intirion] was the defendant, so the allegations in the declaratory judgment complaint were not a defendant’s claims in opposition to a plaintiff’s claims, as set forth in the cited definition of ‘counterclaim.’” See Avigilon, Paper 11 at 10–11. In these circumstances, “inter partes review may not be instituted.” 35 U.S.C. § 315(a)(1).

For all the above reasons, Intirion respectfully requests the Board decline to institute IPR2023-01042.

was the lead case because CP was the first filed case in the proper venue. (Ex. 2017, Patton Decl., ¶ 4); see also (Ex. 2009 at 9:12–10:20).
