Repurposed Shipping Containers for the Oil and Gas Industry

Business competition will always be fierce. But folks in the oil and gas industry face literal headwinds when it comes to job execution. Some of the country's most promising basins are plotted in remote locations with extreme weather, and isolated from any established infrastructure. There are no hotels, office parks, restaurants, and recreational areas nearby. Remote locations also pose security risks, in the form of equipment theft or vandalism.

That's why Falcon has become a leading name in oil and gas solutions—specifically in drill site or production site structures. Our expert team of engineers and designers deliver living, working, equipment housing, and storage solutions to North American shale plays, oil plays, coal-bed fields, even offshore jobs. Our repurposed shipping containers are unrivaled in terms of durability, portability, cost-efficiency, and security.
