THE COURT: Okay. We're back on the record.

At this point I'm going to grant plaintiffs' motions to amend and add these additional patents. Noting as Mr. Ravel did that this makes this a phenomenal case that I'm hoping one day maybe people will write songs about because it is about as complicated as you're going to get with patent cases.

I'm going to grant the leave to amend and primarily for my review of both the chart that was submitted back in October and the schedule that it did contemplate the addition amendments and addition of patents to the case.

I will in addition of granting the motions for leave to file the amended complaints, I will order the parties to meet and confer on desired modifications to the schedule. And if you can get, let's say I'll give you one week to submit -- do you think that will be enough time for everybody to visit and submit a proposed modification to the schedule?

As you can probably anticipate from the comments during the hearing that I'll be amenable to it. As the parties know, most things can be or most prejudice can be alleviated by granting more time to address things. So I'm definitely amenable to adjusting the schedule.

And to the extent that it can be adjusted in such a way that Kaspersky would line up with everybody else, that would not
