[EXTERNAL EMAIL]
Hello, Risa.

I'm not aware of any declaration or certification that we provide for our resources, but the date that the dissertation was published through our archive is coded into the record. OSU Libraries made this dissertation publicly available on 10-21-2008. We would have received it before that date because there is a certain amount of processing and description that is done before it is published in the archive, but there isn't a record of that date. I don't know if that helps. Let me know if you have any other questions.

Best,

Subject: Dissertation Declaration question

You don't often get email from risa.murphy@morganlewis.com. Learn why this is important

Hello Brad,

I found your name via your LinkedIn profile, as I was looking for a cataloguer to ask this question:

We are handling a patent litigation where the date that a dissertation was indexed and made available to the public is in dispute. Here is the one we are interested in. Does OSU ever provide a declaration/certification for when this publication was received and/or made publicly available?

Thank you for any information!
