Why Do You Need It?

What if your laptop gets stolen or just turns up missing? The possible scenarios are endless. Imagine coming back from lunch one day and your laptop has simply vanished. Must be an inside job since your office is secure. Even with the increased security at airports, there's still the significant risk someone grabs your computer case instead of his own. Can you really trust the cleaning staff in the hotel or your fellow conference attendees? Have you ever left something in a taxi and tried to get it back?

Any chance you'll ever see your laptop again? Even if you file a police report, how will the physical location of your mobile notebook computer be determined? Up until now, there has been no viable solution. The FBI states that less than 2% of laptops are ever recovered. Over 300,000 laptops were reported stolen last year. Do you want to be one of those statistics?

ZTRACE Technologies recognized the downsides of the wonderful world of mobile computing -- mobility and portability. This all started because ZTRACE's founder found his home burglarized and the thief didn't steal the laptop. That started the "what ifs" that led to the development of ZTRACE GOLD.
