

Stipulated Background of Marc Werner

- Mr. Werner worked with polymers since the age of 8-10 as his father's lab assistant. Mr. Werner's father was the inventor of Fiberglass Pultrusions for use in ladders.
- Mr. Werner worked with polymers in the Werner Company labs and factory from an early age. Mr. Werner was trained as a financial engineer.
- 1979 - Northern Illinois University: Bachelor of Science in Accounting/Economics/Statistics
- 1981-1986: Borg-Erickson Corp., CEO
 - Mr. Werner was hired as CFO and promoted to CEO
 - Mr. Werner invented the digital bathroom scale and then the strain gauge digital bathroom scale
- 1986-1997: Werner Ladder, C-Level (vertically integrated industrial/consumer manufacturing business)
 - Mr. Werner was Fiberglass Manager, worked in the plant, labs, and managed the polymer business unit
- 1999 – present: Werner Media Partners, LLC d/b/a Nature's Sleep and Ghostbed Inc., Founder/CEO