Bare-faced chic

Introducing sensational skincare that guarantees an effective and indulgent start and end to each day. For a zesty, brightening gel cream that hydrates while providing a smooth canvas for make-up, look to Sunday Riley's new Vitamin C cream. Gucci's microfine mist is a chic handbag essential for a midday hydration boost. And for gilded decadence, turn your attention to La Prairie's gold-infused night balm, which has a sculpted marble massage stone tucked inside the lid. This rich, champagne-hued formula promises unparalleled radiance by morning.

£29 AT HANSKIN

This is a fantastic all-round cleanser that effectively brightens and exfoliates but is gentle enough for daily use. BEST FOR BREAKOUTS

Skin Perfecting 2% BHA
Liquid Exfoliant

£31 AT PAULA'S CHOICE

This liquid exfoliant contains 2% salicylic acid (a beta hydroxy acid – BHA) and is something I personally reach for often, as well as recommend to my clients. BHAs are a fantastic ingredient for acne-prone skin, as they help to decongest pores, which can help prevent breakouts.

All made up

A flawless face of make-up requires a high-quality brush collection. Step forward Gucci Westman, make-up artist and founder of Westman Atelier, whose collection of expertly crafted birch brushes – made in Japan by the world's oldest brush manufacturer – is truly game-changing. For an enviable complexion, Typology's tinted serum has become a cult classic – buff it into your face to subtly blur imperfections and give skin a flattering glow. To achieve a more refined brow, Refy's three-part kit can sculpt, fill in gaps and set unruly hairs. Finish with a smudge of Chanel's Water-Fresh Blush for an effortlessly fresh-faced look.

Self-care can take many forms. For some, it might be a CBD-infused soak in Dreem Distillery's bath oil. For others, it might be an at-home facial treatment – look no further than Teresa Tarmey's microneedling kit to transform your skin beyond recognition. Either way, a regular wellness ritual benefits both body and mind.

Ear Seeds To Calm Anxiety

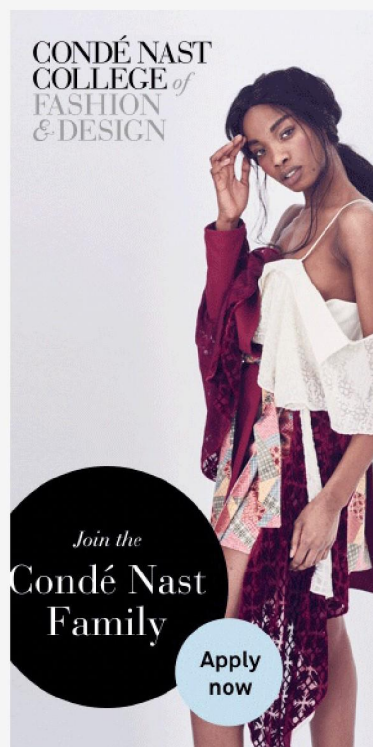

£32.99 AT POINT ZERO

I first tried ear seeding when I went to a healing session with the cosmetic acupuncturist Sarah Bradden. It involves placing tiny seeds on pressure points across the ear and is a technique used in traditional Chinese medicine as a form of acupressure. I've found it to be effective in easing stress and anxiety, as well as helping with insomnia and pain relief.

PM+ Sleep + Calm Mind

£24.99 AT JS HEALTH

This is one of my favourite supplements. It contains lavender oil and camomile and I noticeably sleep deeper when I take one before bed. I have recommended it to everyone I know. Sleep is so integral to our wellbeing, and prioritising it is essential for keeping me feeling my best.

BEST CALMING CANDLE

Muse Candle

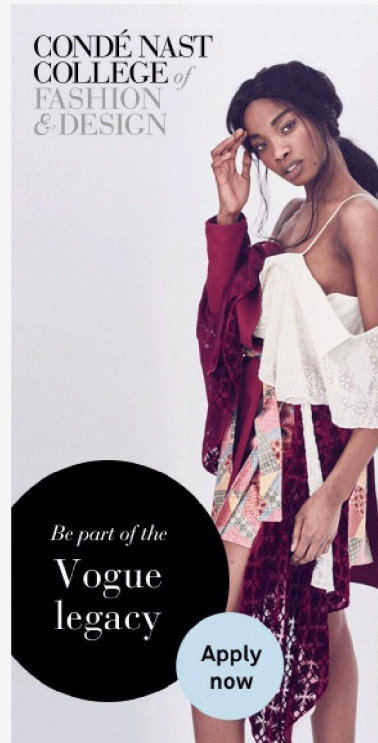

£64 AT AUGUST & PIERS

I find the minimal aesthetic of this collection immediately calming, while the scents themselves are rich, delicious and fill the entire room. But more than that, the brand philosophy is to celebrate individuality and honour all our quirks, which I really love.

Next of skin

With all the attention on our face, it's easy to neglect the skin on one's body. Meder's cooling gel provides welcome relief for worn-out legs, and to achieve a swan-like neck, Skinbetter Science's Techno Neck Perfecting Cream is an effective antidote to slack skin. Be transported to a heavenly spa through the fresh scent of an exfoliating scrub made from foraged ingredients and organic honey from Lord Newborough's Rhug Estate in North Wales. It leaves the body butter-soft and well moisturised.

This gentle but effective tool has a curved edge that lifts the cuticle perfectly while lightly exfoliating the nail plate, which helps polish last longer. It's also handmade in the UK, super durable and coated in titanium, which keeps it hygienic. I love the fact that it's gold, as it looks chic.

BEST HAND CREAM

I always include Chanel products in my kit – I love and trust the brand and it's synonymous with luxury.

Tress to impress

A healthy head of hair starts with a well-conditioned scalp – turn to Guerlain, whose first foray into haircare comes in the form of a honey-infused oil, clinically proven to increase volume and shine. For a perfect blowdry, it's all about mousse – yes, the '80s styling staple known for its crunchy yet sticky effect, now brilliantly reinvented by stylist Larry King. The mousse of old has been replaced with a modern formula that gives hair lustrous volume and a silky-soft texture. And for styling, Dyson's Airwrap multi-styler has had a hi-tech makeover, so creating a salon-worthy 'do is quicker and easier.

Forever fabulous

From a fragrance marking a major anniversary (Santa Maria Novella celebrating 800 years with a new eau de parfum) to modern cult classics (among them Maison Francis Kurkdjian's hypnotic Baccarat Rouge 540 scent), these products are seminal pieces of beauty history. For a true collector's item, the limited-edition Muguet by Guerlain, bedecked with crystals and jewels, is one to treasure. Meanwhile, Hermès, the 185-year-old brand once specialising in riding gear, has added a tinted balm to its growing beauty line.
