Omeir Saeed: Alladin May Ditch His Magic Carpet for This

4 September 2020, 1:00 pm EDT By CJ Robles Tech Times

As the first professional wakeboarder from the United Arab Emirates, Omeir Saeed has built a strong following for his love for the sport. He also seems to enjoy doing TikTok videos showing his balancing moves on boards and this new toy, the Lift eFoil.

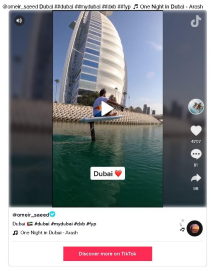
TECH TIMES
Love Tech Times? Let's Keep in Touch!
Sign up for our email newsletter today. Tech Times' biggest stories, updates to your inbox.
Enter your e-mail SUBMIT

[Photo: Omeir Saeed/Facebook]
The first Professional wakeboarder from United Arab Emirates

In his recent video, Saeed is calmly sitting on his Lift eFoil board while it passes through the fog-clad hotel Burj Al Arab in Dubai, UAE, with Akaash's One Night in Dubai playing on the background.

The video quickly earned more than 14,200 views and 1,275 likes in less than a day since it was posted on September 3. One user said: "One night in Dubai is not enough."

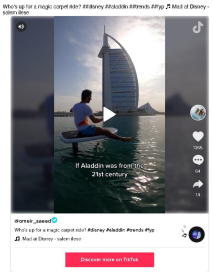
@omeir_saeed Dubai #dubai #fmydubai #fdxb #fyp ♬ One Night in Dubai - Akash



Aside from the sceneries, people have been responding over the board he is using, what it is called, or how much it costs. Meanwhile, another user asked how to balance the board, which Saeed replied: "Requires a lot of balance."

In another video he posted, Saeed asked: "Who's up for a magic carpet ride?" With a Salem Boss's "Mad at Disney" on the background music, Saeed was like Alladin maneuvering his magic carpet passing under a bridge and through the Burj Al Arab Hotel.

Who's up for a magic carpet ride? #disney #Aladdin #friends #fyp ♬ Mad at Disney - salem ilese



A meme says, "If Aladdin was from the 21st century, he wouldn't need a magic carpet anymore" shows in the video. And perhaps, Saeed is right. That would be a cool possibility. Like one of the TikTok users said in the comments: "Aladdin 2020."

Meanwhile, another user asked what will happen if the user falls into the water and will the device continues to work. Saeed simply replied, "Yes, it stops."

[Photo: Lift Foils]
Lift eFoil electric surfboard

Read also: A Father's Love: Master Illusionist David Blaine Floats 24,000ft into the Air with Helium Balloons For Daughter!

Lift eFoil electric surfboard

According to Gadget Flow, the Lift Foils eFoil electric surfboard is a great device any water lover would love to try. Powered by a lithium battery, it breaks waves via remote control connected via Bluetooth, providing a stable ride over any water. It can easily provide a fun and stable ride on any body of water and weather conditions.

Electric and cord-free, it makes a safe and fun way to spend time on the ocean, even for beginners. It also does not produce noise or emissions while it also works for 60 minutes before it runs out of battery. It can also reach the highest speed of 25 mph after just a two-hour charge.

[Photo: Lift Foils]
The Lift eFoil Costs $ 16,500 ?

In July, Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg was seen riding the $32,000 board while on vacation in Hawaii. However, he did not make news for his experience, but the huge amount of sunblock cream he put on his face.

In the pictures that surfaced in social media, he looks like a mime with such a white face. Either he forgot to spread the cream, or he was making sure not to get sunburned as the temperature was at 29 degrees Celsius at that time.

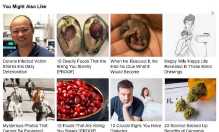
Regardless, he sure had a great experience gliding on the waters aboard the eFoil board.

Read also: Mark Zuckerberg Conquers Hawaii with a Ton of Sunscreen and $32,000 Worth Surfboard

This is curated by Tech Times

Written by CJ Robles

You Might Also Like



0 Comments Sort by Oldest

Add a comment...

IPR2024-01107
MHL 2014
Bombardier Recreational Products, Inc. and MHL Custom, Inc.
MHL_0100946