

June 27, 2024

I am CEO of iFixit, a company dedicated to providing repair guides and parts to empower consumers in maintaining and repairing their electronic devices. In this capacity, I am familiar with the teardown and the process by which it was created and made publicly available.

I hereby declare that the documents provided are true and correct copies of the original iPhone 6 teardown traffic data and authoring history as published by iFixit. These documents accurately reflect the content and format of the information that was made publicly available on our website.

Regarding the public availability of the iPhone 6 teardown page, I confirm the following:

Navigation to the Report: The iPhone 6 teardown report was accessible via the main iFixit website. Users could navigate to the report through various pathways, including the main navigation menu under the 'Teardown' section, search functionality on the website, and direct links from related device pages.

Free Access: The teardown report was freely accessible to all users. No registration or payment was required to view the report, ensuring that anyone interested in the information could access it without barriers.

Linking to Other Sites: The iPhone 6 teardown page was often linked from other sites, including technology news websites, forums, and social media platforms. These links directed users to our teardown page, thereby increasing its visibility and accessibility to the public.

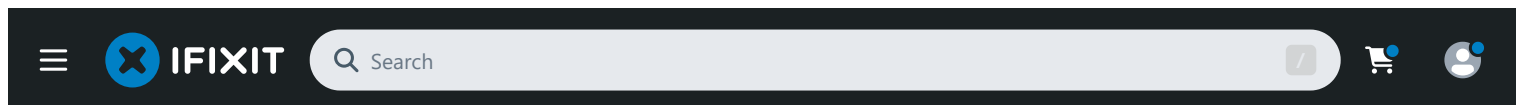

I trust this declaration satisfies your requirements. Please let me know if you need any further information or clarification.

Sincerely,

Kyle Wiens
CEO, iFixit
