Paul Marston

Senior Lecturer at University of Central Lancashire
Greater Preston Area

Summary

I am a university senior lecturer at the University of Central Lancashire (now part time) and also a lay minister in the (evangelical) Free Methodist Church. I had an early interest in philosophy, and when a student at LSE had the opportunity to study under the philosopher of science Sir Karl Popper. I also have a lifelong interest in theology and have an M.A. in holiness theology.

As well as having written long ago a (maybe boring!) book on statistics and a more recent (not at all boring) book called 'Great Astronomers in European History' I have authored or co-authored seventeen Christian books with six different UK and US publishers.

Currently available are these books, written with Roger Forster:

'God's Strategy in Human History' (2 volumes 2014)

'Christianity: the Evidence' (2015)

'Paul's Gospel: in Romans and Galatians' (2016)

All published by Push publishers and available on Amazon.co.uk and Amazon.com

The earlier larger books with Roger Forster "Reason, Science and Faith" and the earlier second edition of "God's Strategy in Human History" are available from the publisher Wipf and Stock, and sometimes on Amazon.co.uk or Amazon.com

Some of my other solo books are available free to download from my website www.paulmarston.net. These include biblical study books on women in ministry and marriage and divorce.

I have a wonderful wife, an adult son and daughter, and four grandchildren.
