Determination of Patent Term Extension or Adjustment under 35 U.S.C. 154 (b)

Design patents have a term measured from the issue date of the patent and the term remains the same length regardless of the time that the application for the design patent was pending. Since the above-identified application is an application for a design patent, the patent is not eligible for Patent Term Extension or Adjustment under 35 U.S.C. 154(b).

Any questions regarding the Patent Term Extension or Adjustment determination should be directed to the Office of Patent Legal Administration at (571)-272-7702. Questions relating to issue and publication fee payments should be directed to the Customer Service Center of the Office of Patent Publication at 1-(888)-786-0101 or (571)-272-4200.

OMB Clearance and PRA Burden Statement for PTOL-85 Part B

The Paperwork Reduction Act (PRA) of 1995 requires Federal agencies to obtain Office of Management and Budget approval before requesting most types of information from the public. When OMB approves an agency request to collect information from the public, OMB (i) provides a valid OMB Control Number and expiration date for the agency to display on the instrument that will be used to collect the information and (ii) requires the agency to inform the public about the OMB Control Number's legal significance in accordance with 5 CFR 1320.5(b).

The information collected by PTOL-85 Part B is required by 37 CFR 1.311. The information is required to obtain or retain a benefit by the public which is to file (and by the USPTO to process) an application. Confidentiality is governed by 35 U.S.C. 122 and 37 CFR 1.14. This collection is estimated to take 12 minutes to complete, including gathering, preparing, and submitting the completed application form to the USPTO. Time will vary depending upon the individual case. Any comments on the amount of time you require to complete this form and/or suggestions for reducing this burden, should be sent to the Chief Information Officer, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, U.S. Department of Commerce, P.O. Box 1450, Alexandria, Virginia 22313-1450. DO NOT SEND FEES OR COMPLETED FORMS TO THIS ADDRESS. SEND TO: Commissioner for Patents, P.O. Box 1450, Alexandria, Virginia 22313-1450. Under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995, no persons are required to respond to a collection of information unless it displays a valid OMB control number.

AMENDMENT AFTER FINAL ACTION

Mail Stop Amendment
Commissioner for Patents
P.O. Box 1450
Alexandria, VA 22313-1450

This is in response to the Final Office Action mailed September 17, 2015, and having a period for response set to expire on December 17, 2015.

Reconsideration and allowance of Applicant's claim is requested in view of the amendments and remarks provided herein.

REMARKS

The Applicant responds under 37 C.F.R. 1.116 to the Final Office Action of September 17, 2015. No fee is due if filed by December 17, 2015. No new matter is presented in this Amendment.

I. Final Rejection Under 35 U.S.C. 171

The Office has finally rejected the design claim under 35 U.S.C. 171 because it is allegedly directed to nonstatutorily protectable subject matter, since the design allegedly does not indicate an interactive component of a central processing unit (CPU) or a program that runs on a CPU, as is required for graphical user interface designs of this type.

According to the Office, the titles to design patent applications in the generated user interface category should focus on what was originally intended, as required by Board's ruling in Ex Parte Strijland. It is allegedly not enough to simply illustrate a picture displayed on a computer screen or other display device and call it a "generated image," because that is allegedly not significantly different from displaying a picture on a piece of paper. To the Office, the design must be an "integral and active component in operation of a programmed computer, rather than a mere displayed picture." Final Office Action, page 2.

Although the Office acknowledges that the amendment of the title to identify the claimed design as a "Display Screen or Portion Thereof with Graphical User Interface" is sufficient to meet the "article of manufacture" requirement of Section 171, there is allegedly no indication of activity with a program of a CPU within the disclosure as originally filed, and therefore the new title (which implies interactivity), is allegedly not supported.

In order to address the Office's concerns in this regard, the Applicant respectfully traverses this final rejection of the design claim. As set forth in detail below in the context of the Applicant's response to the final rejection of the design claim under 35 U.S.C. 112(a) and (b), the FIGURE, as it was originally filed, shows a computer-generated graphical user interface design that is displayed on a display screen. According to Korean Design Patent Application No. 30-2012-0052484, filed November 02, 2012, from which the present application claims foreign priority under 35 U.S.C. 119, the design claimed by the present application is directed to the design of the image set-up menu for personalizing the quality of the image that is shown on a display screen. The Korean Design Patent Application has been incorporated by referenced into the present design application, and an English translation is submitted for your reference.

Therefore, a designer of ordinary skill in the art of computer-generated graphical images would understand from the features displayed on the FIGURE that the image or interface represents a menu presented to the user that was generated by the interaction of software code that was executed on a CPU in response to an interactive selection from that menu that was made by the user and entered into the computer. The results of that selection were displayed on the display screen in the form shown in the FIGURE in the form of the aforesaid menu, which allows the user to make further interactive selections from the menu which change the display of information on the display screen. For these reasons, the original disclosure of the claimed design clearly described an interactive component of a CPU or a computer program operating on a CPU, as required by Ex Parte Strijland.

As a result, this rejection lacks a proper factual and legal basis, and the Applicant respectfully requests that it be withdrawn.

II. Final Rejection Under 35 U.S.C. 112 First Paragraph

The Office has finally rejected the design claim under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the amendments to the title that were made in the September 3, 2015 response to the Non-Final Office Action allegedly fail to comply with the written description requirement of that statutory provision. In that response, the Applicant amended the title from the original title of “Generated Image for a Display Screen or Portion Thereof” to the new title of “Display Screen or Portion Thereof with Graphical User Interface,” as was standard, accepted practice in response to similar objections and rejections based on an allegedly incorrect title in other design patent applications of this type.

In finally rejecting the design claim, the Office contends that there is allegedly no support in the original disclosure of the present application for the description of a graphical user interface. The Office asserts that there is allegedly nothing in the drawings or the specification as they were originally filed which describes the design as being directed to an article displaying an interactive component of a programmed computer. According to the Office, there are allegedly no visual or verbal indications in the original disclosure of the claimed design that directs or guides one skilled in the art to the subject matter now claimed. As a result, the Office concludes that the amendment of the title that was made by the Applicant allegedly introduces “new matter” that was not part of the original disclosure of the claimed design.

In order to address the Office’s concerns in this regard, the Applicant respectfully traverses this final rejection of the design claim. As an initial matter, the Applicant is unaware of any case law, patent rule or provision of the MPEP that specifically requires that an applicant identify an interactive component of a computer system in an application which claims a “generated image,” graphical user interface or computer-generated icon design either in the original specification or in the drawing figures. It is the Applicant's understanding that a designer of ordinary skill in the art may review the drawing figures and specification of a design patent application in order to gain an understanding of the nature and use of the claimed design as being interactive. That is, contrary to the Office's assumption, the drawing figures and specification may inherently teach such a designer of ordinary skill that the claimed image is an interactive component of a CPU or a computer program running on a CPU, as required by Ex Parte Strijland.

Moreover, in entering this final rejection of the design claim, the Office fails to provide any specific guidance to the Applicant for how it may disclose the interactivity of the claimed "generated image," graphical user interface or computer-generated icon design in the original disclosure in a way that satisfies the Office. The Applicant is unaware of any accepted method or standard for doing so, which makes its ability to adequately respond to this final rejection problematic.

The Applicant respectfully suggests that a designer of ordinary skill in the art of computer-generated graphical user interfaces and icons would have easily recognized that the "generated image" of the design claim as it was originally filed included an integral and interactive component in the operation of a programmed computer displaying the design, as required by the case of Ex Parte Strijland, 26 U.S.P.Q.2d 1259 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1992), even without the change in title that was made by the Applicant's September 3, 2015 amendment.

The Applicant's claimed design consists of a computer-generated image or graphical user interface design in a form that is typically encountered by users of computers. According to Korean Design Patent Application No. 30-2012-0052484, filed November 02, 2012, from which the present application claims foreign priority under 35 U.S.C. 119, the design claimed by the present application is directed to the design of the image set-up menu for personalizing the quality of the image that is shown on a display screen. The Korean Design Patent Application has been incorporated by referenced into the present design application, and an English translation is submitted for your reference.

The menu of the claimed design is comprised of three rectangular frame structures, each with a different size, relative proportion and orientation. The left-side rectangular frame is narrow and vertically-oriented. The central rectangular frame is the largest frame, is the widest, and is more horizontally-oriented, while the right-side rectangular frame is wider than the left-side frame but narrower than the central frame, and is vertically oriented. Within the left-side rectangular frame is a satellite dish icon which is prominently displayed. Within the central rectangular frame is an elongated, narrow, horizontally-oriented rectangular frame.

Based on those claimed features, as well as the unclaimed environmental features shown in the FIGURE, a designer of ordinary skill in the art would readily understand that the Applicant's claimed "generated image" or graphical user interface design is clearly an interactive component of a CPU or a program that runs on the CPU, because the visual appearance of the claimed “generated image” or graphical user interface is created by software code that is executed on a CPU. In order to create this “generated image” or graphical user interface, the CPU must execute software code in response to a request by the user that directs it to create and display the particular image of this menu on a display screen, with the particular placement of the features of the menu shown, so that it may be seen, selected and manipulated by the user on the display screen.

In the context of the “generated image” or graphical user interface design disclosed in the FIGURE, a designer of ordinary skill in the art would understand that it is directed to a one of several virtual “pages” of a graphical menu display which allows the user to adjust and fine-tune the visual performance characteristics or image quality of a color television or similar display device. The software resident in the processor of that device would generate the menu for display to the user as a result of the user’s selection of such a menu using a remote control device or a button on the television’s or display’s console. The user would arrive at the virtual “page” of the menu that is shown on the FIGURE by selecting the satellite dish icon from among the other (unclaimed) icons displayed on the left-side frame.

Using standard techniques well-known to designers in this field, the user’s selection of the satellite dish icon causes the icon to expand in size relative to the other icons displayed on the left-side frame in order to confirm that its functionality has been selected. The functionality of the graphical user interface that is associated with the satellite dish icon is then displayed on the central rectangular frame. The narrow, elongated, horizontally-oriented rectangular frame that is shown within the central rectangular frame is used in this graphical user interface to highlight the particular performance feature that the user wishes to adjust or fine tune. The user interacts with this graphical user interface display by then moving the narrow, elongated, horizontally-oriented rectangular frame either up or down until it highlights the performance feature that the user wishes to adjust.

The unclaimed environmental features shown in the FIGURE would be understood by a designer of ordinary skill to confirm that this is the intended use and operation of the image set-up menu that forms the “generated image” or graphical user interface design. This interactive use exists independent of the title to the present design application (as would be understood by such a designer), because the specification defines the intended function of the image or interface, and the FIGURE relies on standard techniques for laying out and displaying the features of a graphical user interface of this type in order to invite and facilitate user interactivity.

This display and positioning of the features of the claimed “generated image” or graphical user interface design could not be done if the “generated image” or graphical user interface design was “merely illustrating a picture displayed on the screen of a computer or other display device,” which was the concern in Strijland. The dynamic nature of the presently claimed menu design, and the necessity for it to be generated through the interaction of software, the CPU, the display screen and the user confirms that the Applicant’s claimed design meets the legal standard for statutory subject matter set forth in Ex Parte Strijland, because the claimed design is much more than the simple display of an image on a display screen.

Moreover, the Office has routinely issued design patents for graphical images presented on a display screen without any objection, even when the titles to those applications identify the claimed design as a “generated image,” as the following examples illustrate:

U.S. Patent No. D739,427

U.S. Patent No. D734,354

U.S. Patent No. D712,419

U.S. Patent No. D698,801

U.S. Patent No. D610,159

U.S. Patent No. D589,976

Finally, the present application has been pending before the Office for over two (2) years. At the time that it was filed in May 2013, the practice of referring to the claimed design as a “generated image for a display screen or portion thereof” was very common, routine and noncontroversial, as the examples above conclusively establish. That is why the Applicant chose the original title to include the phrase “generated image,” because it believed at the time that this title complied with then-current U.S. design patent practices. However, the Applicant now understands that during the over two-year pendency of the present design application, the policies and practices of the Office with respect to the examination of computer-generated graphical user interfaces and icons may have changed, even with respect to changes to the titles for those applications that the Office now deems proper in light of the Strijland case. In other cases of this same type of design claim where the title was objected to because it referred to the claimed design as a “generated image,” the Applicant has been freely allowed to change the title, without objection, so that it reflected the interactive nature of the graphical user interface design that was clearly disclosed in the drawing figures.

To prevent the Applicant from amending the title in this case as a result of a change in the Office’s examination policy that was implemented years after this application was filed is not only fundamentally unfair, but it may also adversely affect the Applicant’s rights to be accorded its fundamental right to due process with respect to the examination of this application under the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution. Therefore, the Applicant respectfully requests that the Office take that very serious matter into consideration when evaluating the Applicant’s present traversal of this final rejection of the design claim.

As a result, this final rejection of the design claim lacks a proper factual and legal basis, and the Applicant respectfully requests that it be withdrawn.

CONCLUSION

Applicant respectfully submits that a full and complete response has been made to the outstanding Final Office Action, and, as such, there being no other objections or rejections, this application is in condition for allowance and a notice of the same is earnestly solicited.

In the event this paper is not being timely filed, the Applicant respectfully petitions for an appropriate extension of time. Any fees for such an extension together with any additional fees only associated with the processing of this Response and any other documents filed concurrently with this Response may be charged to Counsel's Deposit Account 50-51113 under 37 C.F.R. 1.16 and 1.17.

If the Office has any questions, or believes for any reason that personal communication will expedite prosecution of this application, the Office is hereby invited to telephone the undersigned at the number provided below.

Final Rejection

The merits of this case have been carefully reconsidered in light of applicant's response received on 09/03/2015. It is the Examiner's position that the rejection of record under 35 USC §112 first and second paragraphs has been overcome and is hereby withdrawn, the rejection of record under 35 USC §171 has not been overcome by applicant's amendment and are hereby repeated and made FINAL. Applicant's amendment also forms the basis for a new rejection under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, which is set forth below. Because applicant's amendment necessitated this new ground of rejection, it is made FINAL.

Claim Rejection - 35 USC § 171

The claim is AGAIN AND FINALLY REJECTED under 35 U.S.C. 171 as directed to nonstatutory subject matter because the claimed design does not indicate an interactive component of a central processing unit (CPU) or a program that runs on the CPU.

A review in the Design Tech Center concluded that the titles in the generated user interface patents should focus on what was originally intended in Ex parte Strijland, 26 U.S.P.Q.2d 1259 (BdPatApp & Inter 1992). Merely illustrating a picture displayed on computer screen or other display device, such as television or movie screen, is alone insufficient to convert picture into patentable design for article of manufacture, since such display is not significantly different from display of picture on piece of paper. Ex parte Strijland, 26 U.S.P.Q.2d 1259 (BdPatApp & Inter 1992). The title "Generated Image for a Display Screen or Portion Thereof" does not indicate an interactive component of a central processing unit (CPU) or a program that runs on the CPU.

Applicant has amended the title to "Display Screen or Portion Thereof with Graphical User Interface." This amendment to the title satisfies the article of manufacture requirement; however, there is no indication of activity with a program of a CPU within the disclosure as originally filed and therefore not supported. (see rejection under 35 USC first paragraph)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The claim is REJECTED under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph as failing to comply with the description requirement thereof since the drawing introduces new matter not supported by the original disclosure. The original disclosure does not reasonably convey to a designer of ordinary skill in the art that applicant was in possession of the design now claimed at the time the application was filed. See In re Daniels, 144 F.3d 1452, 46 USPQ2d 1788 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Rasmussen, 650 F.2d 1212, 211 USPQ 323 (CCPA 1981).

Art Unit: 2913

Specifically, there is no written description support for a design for a Display screen with graphical user interface.

The original disclosure does not include a description that indicates an interactive component of a central processing unit (CPU) or a program that runs on the CPU. By amending the title to "Display Screen or Portion Thereof with Graphical User Interface" introduces new matter that was not in the original disclosure. If the written description does not precisely set forth the particular features in a claim, the question then is whether the specification directs or guides one skilled in the art to the subject matter claimed. See, e.g., Fujikawa v. Wattanasin, 93 F.3d 1559, 1570, 39 USPQ2d 1895, 1904 (Fed.Cir. 1996). In this case the examiner sees no visual or verbal indications in the original disclosure that directs or guides one skilled in the art to the subject matter now claimed.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

AMENDMENT AFTER NON-FINAL ACTION

Mail Stop Amendment
Commissioner for Patents
P.O. Box 1450
Alexandria, VA 22313-1450

This is in response to the Non-Final Office Action mailed June 5, 2015, and having a period for response set to expire on September 8, 2015.

Reconsideration and allowance of Applicant's claim is requested in view of the amendments and remarks provided herein.

Amendments to the Specification begin on page 2 of this paper.

Remarks begin on page 3 of this paper.

A Substitute Specification, clean and marked-up versions, is provided herewith.

IN THE SPECIFICATION

The specification enclosed with replacement paragraphs shows added text with underlining and deleted text with ~~striketrough~~.

Marked up version and clean version are enclosed.

REMARKS

The Applicant responds under 37 C.F.R. § 1.111 to the Non-Final Office Action of June 5, 2015. No fee is due if filed by September 8, 2015. No new matter is presented in this Amendment.

I. Objection to the Specification

The Office has objected to the specification because the broken line statement is allegedly unclear within the context of design patent practice. The Office asserts that the Applicant's use of the phrase, "for illustrative purposes," is not a part of preferred design patent practice. Since broken lines can be used in design patent drawings for a number of reasons, the broken line description should expressly identify the purpose of the broken lines, in addition to defining their relationship to the claimed design, as required by MPEP 1503.01(II). The Office suggests that the specification be amended in an effort to align the broken line statement of the Applicant's current application with preferred design patent practice and for the purpose of clarity.

In order to address the Office's concerns in this regard, the Applicant has amended the specification so that the broken line statement now reads as follows:

"In the drawings, broken lines showing a display screen, mobile terminal, text, letters, numbers and symbols illustrate environment and form no part of the claimed design,"

as suggested by the Examiner. The Applicant's amendments to the specification are set forth in the Substitute Specification, clean and marked-up versions, that are submitted herewith. No new matter has been introduced by these amendments, and entry is therefore respectfully requested.

As a result, this objection to the specification has been rendered moot, and the Applicant respectfully requests that it be withdrawn.

II. Rejection Under 35 U.S.C. 171

The Office has rejected the claim under 35 U.S.C. 171 as being directed to nonstatutory subject matter, since the design is allegedly not embodied in “an article of manufacture,” because the claimed design allegedly does not indicate an interactive component of a central processing unit (CPU) or a program that runs on a CPU. According to the Office, the claimed design is directed to the class of designs referred to in MPEP 1504.01(a) as “Computer Generated Icons.” In the view of the Office, it is not enough to merely illustrate a picture displayed on a computer screen or other display device and call it a “generated image,” since such a display is allegedly not significantly different from the display of a picture on a piece of paper. Non-Final Office Action, P. 2; citing Ex Parte Strijland, 26 U.S.P.Q.2d 1259 (BdPatApp & Inter. 1992).

In order to address the Office’s concern in this regard, the Applicant has amended the specification so that the title to this application now reads: “Display Screen or Portion Thereof with Graphical User Interface.” The Applicant has also amended the specification so that every reference to the title now refers to the newly-amended title. The Applicant’s amendments to the title are set forth in the Substitute Specification, clean and marked-up versions, that are submitted herewith. No new matter has been introduced by these amendments.

With these amendments, the claimed design is now directed to an “article of manufacture” under Section 171 (i.e. a Display Screen or Portion Thereof), and it indicates an interactive component of a central processing unit (CPU) or a program that runs on the CPU (i.e. a Graphical User Interface) under Strijland. Therefore, the design claim of this application is now directed to statutory subject matter under 35 U.S.C. 171. As a result, this rejection has been rendered moot, and the Applicant respectfully requests that it be withdrawn.

III. Rejection Under 35 U.S.C. 112

The Office has rejected the design claim under 35 U.S.C. 112(a) and (b) or 35 U.S.C. 112 (pre-AIA), first and second paragraphs, as allegedly being nonenabled and indefinite, because the exact appearance of the design allegedly cannot be determined. The Office argues that the statement in the specification that refers to the size, scale and position of the generated image allegedly attempts to broaden the scope of the claimed design beyond that which is shown in the drawings. Therefore, the Office contends, the actual scope of the claim and the appearance of the claimed design cannot be determined.

In order to address the Office's concern in this regard, the Applicant has amended the specification by removing the following allegedly objectionable statement, as suggested by the Examiner:

"The size, scale and position of the generated image of the Figure is for illustrative purposes and forms no part of the claimed design."

The Applicant's amendments to the specification are set forth in the Substitute Specification, marked-up and clean versions, that are submitted herewith. No new matter has been introduced by these amendments, and entry is therefore respectfully requested.

As a result, this rejection has been rendered moot, and the Applicant respectfully requests that it be withdrawn.

CONCLUSION

Applicant respectfully submits that a full and complete response has been made to the outstanding Office Action, and, as such, there being no other objections or rejections, this application is in condition for allowance and a notice of the same is earnestly solicited.

In the event this paper is not being timely filed, the Applicant respectfully petitions for an appropriate extension of time. Any fees for such an extension together with any additional fees only associated with the processing of this Response and any other documents filed concurrently with this Response may be charged to Counsel's Deposit Account 50-5113, under 37 CFR 1.16 and 1.17.

If the Office has any questions, or believes for any reason that personal communication will expedite prosecution of this application, the Office is hereby invited to telephone the undersigned at the number provided below.

Respectfully submitted,

Incorporate by Reference

This application incorporates by reference Korean Patent Application Serial No. 30-2012-0052484, filed November 02, 2012. All the material from the Korean Application which is essential to the claimed design is included in this application. Amendments of the claim may be based on the content of the incorporated material. However, with or without a specific amendment, it is understood that any material in the Korean Application which is not present in this application forms no part of the claimed design.

Specification

The specification is objected to as follows:

- The broken line description [The broken line drawing ... form no part of the claimed design.] in the first paragraph of the descriptive paragraph which follows the figure descriptions is improper. Since dotted and broken lines may mean different things in different circumstances, it must be made clear in each design case what they mean, In re Blum, 153 USPQ 177 (C.C.P.A. 1967). The phrase "illustrative purposes" does not clearly define the broken lines and does not exactly identify what the broken lines are showing. The descriptions in the specification are required to be clear and accurate (MPEP 1503.01 (11)). Further, the phrase "illustrative purposes" is not descriptive solely of the broken lines, since the entire drawing is illustrative in nature.

For clarity and accuracy, the broken line description must be amended

Claim Rejection - 35 USC § 171

The claim is understood to be directed to the class of designs referred to as Computer-Generated Icons, described in MPEP § 1504.01(a).

The claim is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 171 as directed to nonstatutory subject matter because the claimed design does not indicate an interactive component of a central processing unit (CPU) or a program that runs on the CPU.

A review in the Design Tech Center concluded that the titles in the generated user interface patents should focus on what was originally intended in Ex parte Strijland, 26 U.S.P.Q.2d 1259 (BdPatApp & Inter 1992). Merely illustrating a picture displayed on computer screen or other display device, such as television or movie screen, is alone insufficient to convert picture into patentable design for article of manufacture, since such display is not significantly different from display of picture on piece of paper. Ex parte Strijland, 26 U.S.P.Q.2d 1259 (BdPatApp & Inter 1992). The title "Generated Image for a display Screen or Portion Thereof" does not indicate an interactive component of a central processing unit (CPU) or a program that runs on the CPU.

Furthermore, a claimed design must be embodied in "an article of manufacture." In re Zahn, 617 F.2d 261, 268, 204 U.S.P.Q. 988, 995 (CCPA 1980). The phrase "an article of manufacture" has been interpreted to be a tangible object or physical substance. See Henry Hanger & Display Fixture Corp. of America v. Sel-O-Rak Corp., 270 F.2d 635, 640, 123 U.S.P.Q. 3, 6 (5th Cir. 1959); Pelouze Scale & Mfg. Co. v. American Cutlery Co., 102 F. 916, 918 (7th Cir. 1900); Kim Craftsman, Ltd. V. Astra Products, Inc., 212 U.S.P.Q. 268 (D.N.J. 1980); 1 E. Lipscomb, Walker on Patents, 2:11 (1984), 1 W. Robinson, The Law of Patents, 200 (1890).

A design may be embodied in an article of manufacture

- (1) as a configuration for an article of manufacture, (
- 2) as a surface ornamentation for an article of manufacture, or
- (3) a combination of both. Gorham v. White, 81 U.S. 511, 525 (1871); In re Schnell, 46 F.2d 203, 209 (CCPA 1931); MPEP § 1502.

Pursuant to the guidelines for examination of design patent applications for computer generated icons (1185 O.G. 60, 61 F.R. 11380 (1996) and MPEP 1504.01), a design for a computer-generated icon may be considered statutory subject matter if the following conditions are present:

- 1) The computer screen, monitor, other display panel, or portion thereof is shown in broken or solid lines with the icon displayed on it, and
- 2) The claim is directed to the subject matter as embodied in an article of manufacture.

The subject matter of the instant application does not appear to meet these conditions. The claim is not directed to an article of manufacture since the Generated Image is stated first in the title, indicating that it is the primary subject matter. A Display Screen would be considered a proper article of manufacture in accordance with 35 U.S.C. 171. Consequently, a design for a computer-generated image per se is unpatentable since it is not embodied in a specific article of manufacture. Ex parte Strijland, 26 U.S.P.Q. 2d 1259 (BdPatApp & Inter 1992), Ex parte Tayama, 24 U.S.P.Q. 2d 1614 (BdPatApp & Inter 1992), Ex parte Donoghue, 26 U.S.P.Q. 2d 1266 (BdPatApp & Inter 1992, and Ex parte Donaldson, 26 U.S.P.Q.2d 1250 (BdPatApp & Inter 1992).

Claim Rejection - 35 USC § 112

The claim is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112(a) and (b) or 35 U.S.C. 112 (pre-AIA), first and second paragraphs, as the claimed invention is not described in such full, clear, concise and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to make and use the same, and fails to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The claim is indefinite and nonenabling because the exact appearance of the design cannot be determined. In particular:

- The second sentence "The size, scale and position of the generated image of the Figure is for illustrative purposes and form no part of the claimed design" in the descriptive paragraph after the figure descriptions attempts to broaden the scope of the claimed design beyond that which is shown in the drawings, therefore, the actual scope of the claim and the appearance of the claimed design cannot be determined. This may be overcome by deleting the said sentence.

Conclusion

The claim stands rejected under 35 USC §§ 171 and 112(a) and (b) or 35 U.S.C. 112 (pre-AIA), first and second paragraphs.

The claim is patentable over the cited prior art; however, a final determination of patentability will be made upon resolution of the above rejection.

PROTECTING YOUR INVENTION OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES

Since the rights granted by a U.S. patent extend only throughout the territory of the United States and have no effect in a foreign country, an inventor who wishes patent protection in another country must apply for a patent in a specific country or in regional patent offices. Applicants may wish to consider the filing of an international application under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT). An international (PCT) application generally has the same effect as a regular national patent application in each PCT-member country. The PCT process simplifies the filing of patent applications on the same invention in member countries, but does not result in a grant of "an international patent" and does not eliminate the need of applicants to file additional documents and fees in countries where patent protection is desired.

Almost every country has its own patent law, and a person desiring a patent in a particular country must make an application for patent in that country in accordance with its particular laws. Since the laws of many countries differ in various respects from the patent law of the United States, applicants are advised to seek guidance from specific foreign countries to ensure that patent rights are not lost prematurely.

Applicants also are advised that in the case of inventions made in the United States, the Director of the USPTO must issue a license before applicants can apply for a patent in a foreign country. The filing of a U.S. patent application serves as a request for a foreign filing license. The application's filing receipt contains further information and guidance as to the status of applicant's license for foreign filing.

Applicants may wish to consult the USPTO booklet, "General Information Concerning Patents" (specifically, the section entitled "Treaties and Foreign Patents") for more information on timeframes and deadlines for filing foreign patent applications. The guide is available either by contacting the USPTO Contact Center at 800-786-9199, or it can be viewed on the USPTO website at <http://www.uspto.gov/web/offices/pac/doc/general/index.html>.

For information on preventing theft of your intellectual property (patents, trademarks and copyrights), you may wish to consult the U.S. Government website, <http://www.stopfakes.gov>. Part of a Department of Commerce initiative, this website includes self-help "toolkits" giving innovators guidance on how to protect intellectual property in specific countries such as China, Korea and Mexico. For questions regarding patent enforcement issues, applicants may call the U.S. Government hotline at 1-866-999-HALT (1-866-999-4258).

LICENSE FOR FOREIGN FILING UNDER
Title 35, United States Code, Section 184
Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, 5.11 & 5.15

GRANTED

The applicant has been granted a license under 35 U.S.C. 184, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" followed by a date appears on this form. Such licenses are issued in all applications where the conditions for issuance of a license have been met, regardless of whether or not a license may be required as set forth in 37 CFR 5.15. The scope and limitations of this license are set forth in 37 CFR 5.15(a) unless an earlier license has been issued under 37 CFR 5.15(b). The license is subject to revocation upon written notification. The date indicated is the effective date of the license, unless an earlier license of similar scope has been granted under 37 CFR 5.13 or 5.14.

This license is to be retained by the licensee and may be used at any time on or after the effective date thereof unless it is revoked. This license is automatically transferred to any related applications(s) filed under 37 CFR 1.53(d). This license is not retroactive.

The grant of a license does not in any way lessen the responsibility of a licensee for the security of the subject matter as imposed by any Government contract or the provisions of existing laws relating to espionage and the national security or the export of technical data. Licensees should apprise themselves of current regulations especially with respect to certain countries, of other agencies, particularly the Office of Defense Trade Controls, Department of State (with respect to Arms, Munitions and Implements of War (22 CFR 121-128)); the Bureau of Industry and Security, Department of Commerce (15 CFR parts 730-774); the Office of Foreign Assets Control, Department of Treasury (31 CFR Parts 500+) and the Department of Energy.

NOT GRANTED

No license under 35 U.S.C. 184 has been granted at this time, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" DOES NOT appear on this form. Applicant may still petition for a license under 37 CFR 5.12, if a license is desired before the expiration of 6 months from the filing date of the application. If 6 months has lapsed from the filing date of this application and the licensee has not received any indication of a secrecy order under 35 U.S.C. 181, the licensee may foreign file the application pursuant to 37 CFR 5.15(b).

PROTECTING YOUR INVENTION OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES

Since the rights granted by a U.S. patent extend only throughout the territory of the United States and have no effect in a foreign country, an inventor who wishes patent protection in another country must apply for a patent in a specific country or in regional patent offices. Applicants may wish to consider the filing of an international application under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT). An international (PCT) application generally has the same effect as a regular national patent application in each PCT-member country. The PCT process simplifies the filing of patent applications on the same invention in member countries, but does not result in a grant of "an international patent" and does not eliminate the need of applicants to file additional documents and fees in countries where patent protection is desired.

Almost every country has its own patent law, and a person desiring a patent in a particular country must make an application for patent in that country in accordance with its particular laws. Since the laws of many countries differ in various respects from the patent law of the United States, applicants are advised to seek guidance from specific foreign countries to ensure that patent rights are not lost prematurely.

Applicants also are advised that in the case of inventions made in the United States, the Director of the USPTO must issue a license before applicants can apply for a patent in a foreign country. The filing of a U.S. patent application serves as a request for a foreign filing license. The application's filing receipt contains further information and guidance as to the status of applicant's license for foreign filing.

Applicants may wish to consult the USPTO booklet, "General Information Concerning Patents" (specifically, the section entitled "Treaties and Foreign Patents") for more information on timeframes and deadlines for filing foreign patent applications. The guide is available either by contacting the USPTO Contact Center at 800-786-9199, or it can be viewed on the USPTO website at <http://www.uspto.gov/web/offices/pac/doc/general/index.html>.

For information on preventing theft of your intellectual property (patents, trademarks and copyrights), you may wish to consult the U.S. Government website, <http://www.stopfakes.gov>. Part of a Department of Commerce initiative, this website includes self-help "toolkits" giving innovators guidance on how to protect intellectual property in specific countries such as China, Korea and Mexico. For questions regarding patent enforcement issues, applicants may call the U.S. Government hotline at 1-866-999-HALT (1-866-999-4158).

LICENSE FOR FOREIGN FILING UNDER
Title 35, United States Code, Section 184
Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, 5.11 & 5.15

GRANTED

The applicant has been granted a license under 35 U.S.C. 184, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" followed by a date appears on this form. Such licenses are issued in all applications where the conditions for issuance of a license have been met, regardless of whether or not a license may be required as set forth in 37 CFR 5.15. The scope and limitations of this license are set forth in 37 CFR 5.15(a) unless an earlier license has been issued under 37 CFR 5.15(b). The license is subject to revocation upon written notification. The date indicated is the effective date of the license, unless an earlier license of similar scope has been granted under 37 CFR 5.13 or 5.14.

This license is to be retained by the licensee and may be used at any time on or after the effective date thereof unless it is revoked. This license is automatically transferred to any related applications(s) filed under 37 CFR 1.53(d). This license is not retroactive.

The grant of a license does not in any way lessen the responsibility of a licensee for the security of the subject matter as imposed by any Government contract or the provisions of existing laws relating to espionage and the national security or the export of technical data. Licensees should apprise themselves of current regulations especially with respect to certain countries, of other agencies, particularly the Office of Defense Trade Controls, Department of State (with respect to Arms, Munitions and Implements of War (22 CFR 121-128)); the Bureau of Industry and Security, Department of Commerce (15 CFR parts 730-774); the Office of Foreign Assets Control, Department of Treasury (31 CFR Parts 500+) and the Department of Energy.

NOT GRANTED

No license under 35 U.S.C. 184 has been granted at this time, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" DOES NOT appear on this form. Applicant may still petition for a license under 37 CFR 5.12, if a license is desired before the expiration of 6 months from the filing date of the application. If 6 months has lapsed from the filing date of this application and the licensee has not received any indication of a secrecy order under 35 U.S.C. 181, the licensee may foreign file the application pursuant to 37 CFR 5.15(b).
