Motion to Dismiss - Failure to State a Claim (FRCP 12(b)(6))			Denied in part granted in part
Patent L Infringement L Direct Infringement District Court Procedural Issues L Pleadings L Sufficiency of Pleadings		The court denied in part plaintiff's motion to dismiss defendant's patent infringement counter claim for failure to state a claim. "[Defendant] satisfies the pleading standard for its counterclaim that [Plaintiff] infringes the '981 patent. [Defendant] did not 'merely allege entitlement to relief.' Instead, [Defendant] supported 'the grounds for that entitlement with sufficient factual content,' i.e., the illustrations of a representative infringing product with annotations for key limitations. While the illustrations did not comprise annotations for each limitation, the illustrations (for the '981 patent) provided sufficient factual detail to allow the Court 'to draw the reasonable inference that [Plaintiff] is liable for the misconduct alleged.'"

Enhanced Damages & Attorney Fees L Exceptional Case L Willful Infringement Infringement L Indirect Infringement L Inducing Infringement District Court Procedural Issues L Pleadings L Sufficiency of Pleadings		The court granted in part plaintiff's motion to dismiss defendant's indirect infringement counter claim for failure to state a claim. "[Plaintiff's] and [Defendant's] cases confirm that [Defendant] failed to sufficiently allege [Plaintiff's] knowledge for the purpose of willful and indirect infringement. Like the plaintiff in Cleveland Medical Devices , for example, [Defendant] did not adequately plead that [Plaintiff] 'had pre-suit knowledge of infringement' because 'nowhere does [Defendant] allege that its correspondence with Plaintiff identified Plaintiff's accused products, identified [Defendant's] asserted patent and claims allegedly infringed, and explained why [Plaintiff's] accused products or components read on the claims' limitations.' Similarly, unlike the plaintiff in VideoLabs, Inc. v. Netflix, Inc. , [Defendant] did not allege that, in the video conference with [Plaintiff], [Defendant] described how [Plaintiff] violated the Asserted Patents."

District Court Procedural Issues L Pleadings L Sufficiency of Pleadings Infringement Defenses L Unenforceability L Inequitable Conduct		The court granted in part plaintiff's motion to dismiss defendant's inequitable conduct counterclaim for failure to state a claim. "[Defendant's] Answer and Counterclaims 'fails to identify which claims, and which limitations in those claims, the withheld references are relevant to, and where in those references the material information is found—i.e., the 'what' and 'where' of the material omissions.' As such, [Defendant] fails to sufficiently allege the counterclaim and affirmative defense of inequitable conduct."
