Counsel,

Currently, the Markman will likely still occur on August 12th. The parties can move the due date for Defendant's Reply brief on or after July 21 without impacting the Court's calendar.

CAUTION - EXTERNAL:

Dear law clerks:

ACS has asked us to further clarify that it has not requested Dr. Kaeli's availability and does not believe his deposition is necessary for the Court to resolve the parties' claim construction disputes, so the only scheduling issue is the unavailability of ACS's expert before Defendants' reply is currently due.

Subject: Advanced Cluster Systems, Inc. v. Intel Corp., No. 7:24-cv-245 – Markman Scheduling

Dear law clerks:

I write on behalf of defendant Intel Corporation in the above-captioned action regarding the scheduling of the Markman hearing, which is currently set for Tuesday, August 12. Both sides submitted expert declarations in support of their claim construction positions, and the parties are currently coordinating expert availability for potential depositions. To assist with that process, we would like to ask whether the Markman hearing is likely to be moved due to other commitments on the Court's calendar. In particular, Plaintiff has informed us that its expert is not available for deposition until July 18th, and we would like to understand if it would be possible for the parties to propose a due date for Defendant's Reply brief on or after July 21 without impacting the Court's calendar. Thank you.

CAUTION - EXTERNAL:

Dear Law Clerks,

Pursuant to the Scheduling Orders entered in Case Nos. 7:24-cv-244 (Advanced Cluster Systems, Inc. v. Advanced Micro Devices, Inc.) and 7:24-cv-245 (Advanced Cluster Systems, Inc. v. Intel Corporation), the parties jointly submit this email to confirm that the Markman hearing in these cases is still scheduled for August 12, 2025, at 9:00 am. Defendants would prefer an in-person hearing, if it works for the Court's schedule. ACS defers to the Court as to whether the hearing will be held remotely or in-person.

Finally, the parties advise that there are no venue or jurisdictional motions for resolution.

Thank you.
