Dear Board,

Corning requests authorization to file a Reply to respond to Petitioner's "material error" arguments for Grounds 1 and 4. Good cause exists because Corning could not reasonably foresee the arguments Petitioner would make about "material error" since Corning did not raise 325(d) in their discretionary brief for the references argued by Petitioner. Such briefing would be consistent with the prior approach in which patent owner was allowed the last briefing to address arguments on material error (in the similar context of 325(d)) in its preliminary response.

Thank you
Best regards,
Charles Hammond for Patent Owner
