Description Of Invention (35 USC § 112)
L Indefiniteness

Corresponding Structure In Means Plus Function Claims

The court found plaintiff's USB regulator patent not invalid as indefinite for lacking corresponding structure. "[Plaintiff's expert] testifies that a POSITA would have understood the claim language to connote a switch—an input for turning on or off transistors that draw current. In support, he cites prior art documents that use the terms 'enable,' 'enable pin,' or 'EN' to refer to a physical pin and/or wire. One datasheet for a commercially available voltage regulator uses the term 'smart enable' and 'smart enable input circuit' to refer to circuitry. These documents demonstrate that a POSITA would understand the term 'enable/disable function' to refer to a structure (like physical pins or circuitry), so the term is not means-plus-function."

DETERMINATIONS

Not invalid

Patent 9471074

Patent Name
USB Regulator with Current Buffer to Reduce Compensation Capacitor Size and Provide for Wide Range of ESR Values of External Capacitor

CLAIM CONSTRUCTIONS

7564665

Term

second voltage rail

to charge the respective pad capacitance

Construction

a second voltage rail that is distinct from the third voltage rail but may or may not be distinct from the first voltage rail to charge the pad capacitance of said physical pad having respective capacitance

9471074

Term

an enable / disable function to enable / disable the biasing circuit for reducing standby current:

wherein the gm - boost circuit enables the current buffer driver to have large gm value

low gain and high bandwidth amplifier

Construction

not indefinite; not a means-plus-function limitation and not subject to 35 USC § 112 ¶ 6

not indefinite; wherein the gm boost circuit increases the gm value of the current buffer driver to be sufficiently large to provide pole-splitting not indefinite
