Dear Michael,

Enclosed is my first draft of my patent. It is written as a combination of a white paper and a patent. I'll have to resolve all of that after you give some feedback.

I want to get a provisional on file ASAP to protect myself as I talk to potential customers and venture capital groups. I have a local attorney, Doug Wright of Faegre & Benson LLP. Doug says that his firm has contacts with many local venture companies and he is going to set up meetings between myself and them. I've already given him copies of my Executive Summary and the sales presentation (the docs I faxed you). I expect to be able to get meetings set up within the next few weeks. To this end, I would like to be able to tell everyone that I have some sort of patent protection in the works.

Let me know what you think.

Thanks,

Eric
