Are you guys using two rows or just one? One lets the pouches hang vertically, always. Two rows would lock the pouches to the angle of the sitdrag. I just do not know what is more comfortable. This is what I have so far. Please do not make fun of my sewing 😊

2 rows will hold better.

I just finished sewing mine and only did the top. I'd rather them adjust as the angle changes on my SD.

Not to be critical, but your bridge looks a bit tattered. It may be from the splices on your rope, I can't tell. Just a safety concern.

That was my first bridge; just a test. Not tattered though. You are probably looking at the blind stitches. They are just not that blind 😊

Here is the final version. A bit longer and a bit cleaner. I only blind stitched one end and I have the tag ends buried almost the entire length of my 33 inch bridge. It is solid.

I did double rows of the molle loops. I get where you are coming from on the angle adjustment, but I love how solid mine are.
