Has anyone seen anything posted that specifies the dimensions for the different sizes (M, L, XL)? I know they have specified the weight differences. I ordered a Large but really think that I may either be a M or somewhere between a M and L. So, just curious what the difference in dimensions are between the M and the L. This way, if the large seems a bit big for me, I'll know if it's best to keep it or go down a size based on the difference in dimensions.

Im curious as well. Im in the same boat. I originally ordered a M but then panicked and changed it to a large. Now that the mediums started to ship I wish I never changed lol. Im just going to have to wait it out and see how the large fits. Im hoping just the actual belt size is the difference in sizes.

@g2outdoors and @Erniepower Do either of you know the dimensions of the different sized saddles?

How tall are you and what's your waist size?

Watching this thread.....curious as well. I've seen several reviews but has anyone seen pictures or video of a Mantis and a Kestrel side by side or on top of each other? Hard to get an idea of actual size if you have nothing of a known size to compare it to. For me anyway...

according to some unofficial measurement by myself and a mantis XL toting fella, height and width of mesh fabric is exactly the same. Not sure if the shape is exact, but I would imagine it is very close. On the size two kite its 15.5" tall and 24" wide - I also posted some pictures in another thread(i'm blanking on which one) that showed a size one kestrel on top of size 2 kite for comparison. I'll try to find that picture and thread for you guys. I'm thinking the mantis is identical shape if not very close

It really has little to do with waist size in my opinion - it's about your butt/hips size.

I do think it would be useful to post a picture with all the sizes stacked on top of each other, and also a loop to loop measurement.

Here's a size 1 and 2 AH for comparison - referencing my previous post above - the size two has the same height and width material as a Mantis XL

I am in the same boat so I'm really interested to see if anyone responds.

Putting this thread to the top. Anybody received a large that can lay it out flat and measure from bridge loop to bridge loop?

I have one. I'll measure it when I get home. It's almost identical in that measurement to an Aero Hunter size 1 Kestrel.
