Patent Owner MeshDynamics submits the following supplemental information relating to Fintiv Factors 2 and 5. On December 11, 2025, Judge Gilstrap entered a Docket Control Order ("DCO") in the parallel Eastern District of Texas proceedings setting trial on March 15, 2027. Ex. 2016. MeshDynamics requested a trial date at or near the date provided in the first-filed case, and Judge Gilstrap granted that request. Paper 7, 10. The DCO clearly indicates that the trial date "cannot be changed without an acceptable showing of good cause," so is unlikely to change. Ex. 2016, 5. As for Fintiv Factor 5, under the DCO the case is progressing, with Cisco's invalidity contentions due on January 5, 2026, along with production of alleged prior art, source code, and technical documentation. Ex. 2016, 4.

The Board's Final Written Decision (FWD) is expected by March 18, 2027. Here, "it will be inefficient to maintain two parallel proceedings when the… scheduled trial date and the projected [FWD] are in close proximity." Shenzen Tuozhu Technology Co., Ltd, v. Stratasys, Inc., IPR2025-00354, Paper 11, 2 (PTAB June 12, 2025). Further, the Board previously denied institution based on other Fintiv factors even when the projected FWD trial dates were so close together that it was unclear which would occur first. See, e.g., Adv. Micro Devices, Inc. v. Adv. Cluster Sys., Inc., IPR2025-00862, Paper 14, 2–3 (PTAB Sept. 3, 2025).
