Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings (FRCP 12(c)) — Denied

Unpatentable Subject Matter (35 USC § 101)
└ Patent Ineligible Subject Matter
└ Abstract Idea

The court denied defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings on the ground that plaintiff's real-time accent conversion model patent encompassed unpatentable subject matter and concluded that the asserted claims were not directed to an abstract idea. "[T]he authorities [Defendant] cites . . . all relate to the conversion of data from one digital format to another. . . . In contrast, [Plaintiff's] technology translates between audio 'formats' whose differences are intelligible and meaningful to humans apart from the devices rendering them, making the cited authority unconvincing. Even if [Plaintiff's] conversion of speech in one accent to that of another were an abstract idea as [Defendant] contends, [Defendant's] argument that the claims are not directed at particular methods because the claim steps do not 'recite any specific technical mechanism' for the conversion is plainly untrue."
