I am just going to go back this it's all people from my last year well we're up to 30 and it's 1201 so I'm gonna start your introduction and then well I get started with the talk so it's my pleasure to introduce Dr.
 John Harris
 John is the chair of dermatology and the director of the autoimmune therapeutics institute and the director of the vitiligo clinic and research center at umass medical school in Worcester Massachusetts he's a dermatologist and physician scientist and he cares for patients in a vitiligo specialty clinic and runs a research lab that's focused on understanding the disease pathogenesis and developing new treatments his group integrates basic translational and clinical research strategies to accomplish this and as a result utilizes both involved in several early stage clinical trials in vitiligo that are showing promise and success for patients and I think you'll hear a little bit about that today he has also founded vitiligo therapeutics which is focused on developing an about that cool and we have lots of thanks your coming in through the chat um and i would also thank you very much for this excellent presentation and all that you've done to help vitiligo patients and know you've been doing a lot of good advocacy work as well like trying to get insurance coverage for treatments for patients so all of that's very important and definitely worthwhile so yeah it's important work it's fun too i love my patients i love the people with vitiligo and working with them and my business who know like you go on to start your own programs and it's exciting that's a it's a big part of what we do great thanks everybody questions you thank you john and we'll uh delay the post up to youtube but we will post this recording on youtube and we will have two speakers next month in march so looking forward to reconnecting with everyone so thanks bye

you
